about the harvest: The four wines that were used to make up this blend were separately harvested at 24.50 °B. The grapes were destalked and juice and skins were transferred to open fermentation tanks and allowed to ferment down to 5°B. Hereafter the juice was drawn off from the skins and transferred to closed fermentation tanks. Any juice remaining in the skins were recovered with the use of a gentle tank press. On completion of the fermentation on- staves-process the wine was racked from the lees. Blending took place approximately 4 months after fermentation was completed. The wine was then protein and tartrate stabilized before bottling.
