in the cellar : Both cultivars comes from the Voor-Paardeberg region where low yield is cropped from the dryland bushvines where planted in shale and sandstone soils. This method creates wine with optimum ripe fuit flavours and a ready to be drink wine.

Only the healthiest Ruby Cabernet grapes are selected and harvested at 29 Baling, destalked and crushed. The acid content is adjusted before the juice is fermented in cement tanks ("kuipe") and pumped over the skin cap twice a day for colour and flavour extraction. Alcoholic fermentation takes place until the wine has reached the required sugar
