Background

The grapes for the Earthbound range of mostly organic wines are sourced from Fairtrade-accredited Papkuilsfontein Vineyards near Darling, close to South Africa's rugged West Coast. The farm has 375 ha under vine of which 173 ha is organically grown.

Organic

The vines were certified as organic by the Société Générale de Surveillance (SGS) after a three-year conversion process.

Fairtrade-accredited

For every ton of grapes harvested for this wine, a premium of €0,50 is paid that goes towards projects intended to benefit workers on the farm, Papkuilsfontein Vineyards, near Darling. A joint body, representing the workers decides on how premiums will be spent.

BWI member

Papkuilsfontein is a member of the Biodiversity & Wine Initiative that seeks to protect the wealth of biodiversity found in the Cape Floral Kingdom by rehabilitating land on wine farms to indigenous habitat.

Vineyards

The grapes for this wine come from two dry-farmed blocks trellised on a three-wire hedge system, planted in 2000

about the harvest: Yield: 4t/ha in the cellar : The wine was made in an SGS-certified cellar. Fermentation took place over 18 days at 24° to 26° C until dry. The wine was pressed into stainless steel tanks and then given nine months' contact with French oak.
