in the vineyard :

Elgin is one of the Cape's coolest wine growing areas with favourable climatic, soil and topographic conditions.

These vineyards are positioned on south-facing slopes of which the soil is mainly white mineral sandstone and quartz on a clay sub-base. The vines are trellised and have access to supplementary irrigation.

in the cellar :

Of the grapes 30% were whole bunch pressed, and the component fermented naturally in French oak casks. 50% of the grapes were destemmed, crushed, pressed and inoculated to ferment and mature in French oak barrels. The remaining 20 % of the wine fermented and matured in stainless steel tank. The three components was matured for 9 months, then blended together before bottling.

Bottled in November 2015.
