The Pinot Noir cultivar has small berries and thin skins from which a ruby-red wine evolves without a dense colour or rough tannins. In fact, Pinot Noir can be described as a "red white wine", so our approach to Pinot Noir has always been to preserve the elegance unique to this noble cultivar.

in the cellar : With our 2016 Unwooded Pinor Noir we continue our commitment to our favourite red cultivar, convinced that this style will entice many a non-red-wine drinker to enjoying the magic of Pinot Noir.
