in the cellar :

The grapes were picked into a cold store overnight before being transported to the cellar in Stellenbosch. The grapes were then destemmed and crushed directly into a stainless steel fermenter. 50% of the stalks were added back to the fermenter. The tank was mixed and 20% of the juice drained off ("Saigne"). The must underwent cold maceration for an extended period before the fermentation started spontaneously. Early aerative pumpovers followed by punching down of the cap was implemented twice a day for extraction until fermentation was completed. Total period on the skins was 3 weeks. The wine was put to barrel for malolactic fermentation after which they were racked, sulphured and put back to barrel for further maturation. The wines spent a total of ten months in old new French oak barrels. The wine received minimal racking during maturation. The wine was blended in January 2016 and then bottled without fining or filtration. 2 000 bottles were produced.
