

Old Road Wine Co. Pardonnez-Moi Cinsaut 2019

Those quirky last words inspired this equally quirky Cinsaut - packed with juicy red berry fruit and wild cherries, some perfumed spice on the nose and a gentle silkiness on the palate. It is that of the unpretentious grace of a well-made Cinsaut that we really like.

Typical of Cinsaut this wine has a sweet fruit character on the nose and palate. It's a juicy wine that bursts of cranberry, fresh red cherries and red wine gums.

It pairs perfectly with light dishes such as spicy calamari, chorizo sausage rigatoni and charcuterie platters. Best served slightly chilled and shared among friends

Just like this Cinsaut tumbles softly across the palate, so too did Marie Antoinette come to a tumbling end on 16th October 1793. She said her famous last words, "Pardon me, sir, I meant not to do it." when she accidentally stepped on her executioner's foot on her way to the guillotine.

There's something about the peculiar things in life that have an uncanny knack of delivering a sense of intrigue. It's those unexpected traits, the left-of-centre personalities, the colourful characters that time and again tease our attention. The very nature of a great wine is its unique ability to deliver something a little different. This set of quirky wines is a side-step into a world of unique characteristics, where individuality from the vine is celebrated through the creation of delicious distinctive wines.

in the vineyard : This utterly drinkable Cinsaut originates from fine old bush vines in Paarl and the Helderberg in Stellenbosch respectively.

about the harvest: Both vineyards grow on weathered granite soils with supplementary irrigation, and grapes are hand-picked at around 25°B optimal ripeness to vividly capture the fruit's natural flavour profile.

in the cellar : In the cellar, gentle extraction and little oak maturation further enhance the drinkability of this refreshing wine.
