in the vineyard :

Cinsault is a very drought resistant grape and grows best in dry climates, producing elegant wines. Known locally as Hermitage, it was a key component in creating the Pinotage varietal.

about the harvest: The grapes were handpicked.

in the cellar : The grapes were handpicked in small crates, before being de-stemmed and crushed. The juice spent only 2 hours on the skins before going into stainless steel tanks for cold-fermentation.
