South Africa's 2021 grape harvest is expected to produce remarkable wines because the cool season slowed the ripening process, allowing the grapes to develop complexity and well-rounded fruit flavours.

in the vineyard : Different sites have produced a variation of grapes from a young, fruit-driven style to older vineyards that express elegance.

in the cellar : Grapes are hand harvested and destemmed before the onset of fermentation. Pumpovers are utilized for colour extraction. Before alcoholic fermentation is complete, it is pressed to make sure that the tannin expression is fine and subtle. A portion of the wine is matured in new French oak for 6 months to create a complex wine with supple tannins.
