

Brookdale Mason Road Serendipity Rosé 2021

A Provence-style rosé with a pale salmon pink colour. The elegant nose offers raspberry, watermelon, and citrus peel and the well-balanced palate has good fruit concentration featuring watermelon, strawberry, and grapefruit, with subtle floral notes. The wine is well structured with a pronounced presence, medium acidity and lingering aftertaste.

Part of Brookdale's Mason Road wine range, Serendipity is exactly that – a moment where chance and opportunity came together. You see, this salmon-coloured rosé with aromas of cherries, strawberries and passion fruit was never meant to happen...

A single block of Grenache Noir had been planted to create a notable red wine blend. However, on the day of the harvest, Tim and Kiara were tasting the grapes and they decided to rather use the entire block for a serious and elegant rosé blend. Now, rosé had never been discussed before as a wine for Brookdale and a flurry of quick thinking and action ensued to make it a reality. It was a complete leap of faith and the result is a summery, medium-bodied rosé as unexpected as it is marvelous. Proof that exploration of the unknown can result in something truly remarkable.

Serendipity is a testament to the curious, and to elegant South African rosé wines.
