about the harvest: Grapes were night harvested and picked by hand to retain flavours.

in the cellar : Grapes were crushed, destemmed and given a two-hour maceration before being pressed. Only the best quality juice, with the softest shade of pink colour was used. The juice was cold fermented in a stainless-steel tank for 3 weeks in order to preserve its freshness and attractive Rosé flavours. The wine was kept on fermentation lees for 3 months to add some creaminess to the palate.
